DETAILED ACTION

Sequence Compliance

1. This application contains sequence disclosures that are encompassed by the definitions for nucleotide and/or amino acid sequences set forth in 37 CFR 1.821(a)(1) and (a)(2). However, this application fails to comply with the requirements of 37 CFR 1.821 through 1.825 for the reason(s) set forth on the attached Notice To Comply With Requirements For Patent Applications Containing Nucleotide Sequence And/Or Amino Acid Sequence Disclosures.

Applicant is reminded to amend the specification (including the Brief Description of Drawings) and claims as appropriate to reflect compliance with the Sequence Rules.

Election/Restrictions

2. For examination purposes:
A) "Use" claims have been interpreted as "method of use". Applicant is reminded that "Use" claims which do not set forth any steps involved in the process are subject to alternate grounds of rejection under 35 U.S.C. 101 and 112 (see MPEP 2173.05 (q)).

B) Claim 11 recites both a method of diagnosis and a method of treatment. These inventions require different process steps to accomplish different endpoints and so are patentably distinct.

Therefore, the restriction has been set forth for each method as a separate group, irrespective of the format of the claims.

3. Restriction is required under 35 U.S.C. 121 and 372.
This application contains the following inventions or groups of inventions which are not so linked as to form a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1.

4. In accordance with 37 CFR 1.499, applicant is required, in response to this action, to elect a single invention to which the claims must be restricted.

I. Claims 1-9, drawn to an OKT3 monoclonal antibody characterized by an exchange of cysteine at H100A and methods of producing said antibody.

II. Claim 10, drawn to a method of use of the cysteine exchanged antibody in eliminating transplant rejection.

III. Claim 11, drawn to a method of use of the cysteine exchanged antibody in tumor diagnosis.

IV. Claim 11, drawn to a method of use of the cysteine exchanged antibody in tumor treatment.

5. The inventions listed as Groups I-IV do not relate to a single general inventive concept under PCT Rule 13.1 because, under PCT Rule 13.2, they lack the same or corresponding special technical features for the following reasons:

The invention of Group I was found to have no special technical feature that defined the contribution over the prior art of Kroon et al. (Pharmaceutical Res. 9:1386-1393 1992)(see entire document) and Senoo et al (US Pat. No. 5,852,177) (see entire document).

Kroon et al teach that OKT3 is inactivated while in storage as a consequence of formation of cross-links between heavy chain in the region of 99-121 (page 1391-1392 bridging paragraph), and that using site directed mutagenesis to synthesize analogues that are more stable would be beneficial for the development as therapeutics (page 1392, last paragraph).

Senoo et al. teach that formation of intra and interchain disulfide bonds is detrimental to protein stability (column 1 to column 2, bridging paragraph) and the conversion of a cysteine to serine to eliminate this problem and improve protein stability (e.g., column 7, lines 55-57).

Therefore it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to apply the teachings of Senoo et al. to the teachings of Kroon et al. to obtain an OKT3 antibody in which heavy chain cysteine 100 was replaced with serine in order to produce a more stable OKT3 antibody. Site-directed mutagenesis to produce such a molecule was well within the skill of the ordinary artisan at the time the invention was made. Therefore, the invention as a whole was prima facie obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made, as evidenced by the references, especially in the absence of evidence to the contrary.

Since Applicant's inventions do not contribute a special technical feature when viewed over the prior art they do not have a single general inventive concept and so lack unity of invention.

6. Applicant is advised that the reply to this requirement to be complete must include an election of the invention to be examined even though the requirement be traversed (37 CFR 1.143).

7. Applicant is reminded that upon the cancellation of claims to a non-elected invention, the inventorship must be amended in compliance with 37 CFR 1.48(b) if one or more of the currently named inventors is no longer an inventor of at least one claim remaining in the application. Any amendment of inventorship must be accompanied by a petition under 37 CFR 1.48(b) and by the fee required under 37 CFR 1.17(i).
